

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides for a stand-alone scanner capable of sending scanned images to USB (Universal Serial Bus) compliant devices for printing, storage, and transmission
5 without the need of a computer host CPU. One embodiment of the invention is an external USB host that enables existing scanners without USB host functionality to host a variety of USB devices.